"There is no such thing as "Eating Right."

If the minerals aren't in the soil where the food is grown, they are not in our foods... organic or not!"

During his pre-med studies at the University of Massachusetts, Peter Glidden developed a deep appreciation of the "results driven" naturopathic medical philosophy which was in sharp contrast to "profits driven" pharmaceutical and allopathic medicine. Find out why Dr. Glidden's head exploded after hearing his first naturopathic lecture and what made him change his ways!
